chool children arrive at the farm of Alfred Raby, near Thurso, P.Q. Many teachers from surrounding districts take their students on field trips during "sugaring-off" to acquaint them with the many steps involved in preparing this native product. Last year production of maple products totalled 2,300,000 gallons of syrup and $17,000 pounds of sugar.

Moreover, Chairman E. R. Wright said he expects the opportunity to obtain men teachers from the present on will be more remote.

"If we lost a man teacher," he said, "I doubt if we could replace him with an experienced one now."

However, Mr. E. C. Dettman, giving his report on the progress of the probationary teachers, pointed out that every teacher has been placed from average to above average to excellent, and that the quality of their work generally

FRAUGHT WITH POLITICAL PITFALLS
 The decision of Town Council to pass the "hours-of-operation" bylaw for the recreation operators was probably an expedient one politically. It's a "hot potato" in which a decision for or against the modification or repeal of the bylaw would cause political repercussions in one camp or the other, depending on which was favored. Unfortunately the decision leaves nothing clearer as the appealing operators are requested to meet and they are as likely to fail as to succeed. The decision is essentially a political move to appease the wisdom of recreation in a political body's hands and not a decision relative to regulation of so-called "fun enterprises." There might be an advantage in having such decisions or rulings made by an appointed group of responsible citizens who had no political aspirations.

In any event, there has been evidence in the past to show that these bylaws are not very highly regarded in the recreation industry or by the nation's top lawyers and judges. There are unmistakable earmarks of majority rule, right or wrong, sometimes to the detriment of an industry's welfare, and the town should not be deceived.

The presentation of the case by the garage operators who were opposed to modifying or repealing the hours-of-operation bylaw is not very convincing. One reason, it is true, is that the opposing operators say it would not be profitable for them to remain open, they choose to remain open. But that is not the issue. The issue is to regulate the operators and to bring about a decent liberty for a garage owner who chooses to remain open for any length of time which they deem to be in the best interests of themselves and their customers. If some operators feel it wouldn't be profitable to remain open, those who wish to do so are not asking that a bylaw be passed restricting the operators, which would result in about as reasonable in principle as the bylaw which says the others must remain closed.

Any advantages of the existing bylaw do not outweigh its inequitable qualities.

Series of Tests Give LCI Spring Term "Testy" Start

Some 48 grade 13 students of the Lindsay Collegiate Institute began their first day at school in the Spring term radically different from any other that they have experienced. The day was spent at a series of tests conducted by the Department of Educational Research of the Ontario College of Education as a part of the Academic Student Study of Utilization of Student Resources.
The Academic Foundation has supplied the necessary funds for this study which involves most of the students currently registered in Grade 13 of the high schools and colleges all across Ontario. Only those students who are taking eight or more papers in quality for Honours Graduation are being tested. The study will attempt to follow these students through university, including college, nursing schools, etc., during the next two years in an effort to discover ways and means of, at the time, the "Student Utilization of Student Resources".

Administered today were the "Scholastic Aptitude Test", "Scholastic Ability Test" and the "Scholastic Reading Test". Some American Universities have their entrance requirements on such a set of tests, rather than on Departmental Examinations as in Ontario. Also made available for the study are scores of the "Ottawa Intelligence Test", "Kuder Preference

Worst Flood 29 Years

Angeline St., Fair Grounds Partly Under

New Caretaker Says Hill Watch For Children Play

What has been reported as the worst flooding conditions in 29 years is now under the Lindsay Park grounds, where the water is so deep that the north-west corner is flooded to full capacity, which indicates a depth of over 10 feet at the deepest point. Mrs. Harold Whitman, who took care of caretaker on Friday from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., was not returned after 29 years told "The Post" that he will attempt to get out that as caretaker, but in particular, children, cannot find their way out of the property until flood conditions subside.

The flood at the fairgrounds is an addition of the previous "Lake Angeline", which has completely covered the hill, and the water is now in the lake, and extends back over the hill to the street for hundreds of feet.

As the result of this severe flood, the hill, which was formerly practically impassable on Thursday and Friday, and about the only way out was by swimming, is now being used for things under the water.

Children are now safe, but the hill at the Community Lake, a handsome traffic problem developed, when, farmers and breeders found they could not gain access to the hill from the south end of the street. As a result, tractors and other trucks found themselves stuck in the mud.

At the fair grounds it was noted that the water at the north end of the race track had appeared in the course track and was seen to be rising by several feet.

Small corporations could be seen to have been abandoned near the hill, and the water was seen to be rising by several feet.

Most Welcome Of All Harbinger Of Spring Come Flocking Back

The robins are back—and not less than thousands of them, welcome harbinger of Spring.

It is estimated that some birds come back to the same location each year. In this instance what was thought to be the same birds, returned year after year in the same place.

It is believed that this year's return of robins is due to the fact that they have been in the area for some time.

Into This

Here's the story . . .

. . . of a man whose will was twelve years old—obsolete in view of the changed conditions in his life and in the world. His lawyer wrote him a letter, suggesting revision—but he put off the matter. Then, one day, the letter was thrown into the wastebasket with an accumulation of papers. With it went his family's last chance for an untroubled future. For within a few weeks he became ill and died; and they, in the hands of a well-meaning but ill-qualified friend, himself a sick and busy man. . . Are you, too, taking such a risk? Don't! Make an appointment with your lawyer now — and let us tell you about the complex attention and skill required for efficient trust management today.

Magic Trick To Try

As a party ice-breaker, produce a glass of water, an ice cube and a piece of string. Challenge someone to pull the cube from the glass with the string.

After several attempts to lasso it prove futile, the performer shows how the trick is done.

First, he lays the string of string over the ice cube, a figure 2. Then he shakes a generous amount of salt over both the string and the ice.

The salt freezes the string to the ice.

...you take a BOARD...

First things come first. When you want to build a fence you take a board. You want to build a big fence, you take a lot of them.

When you want to build a business, you find customers. You want to build a big business, you find a lot of them.

You buy boards at any lumber yard. They come cheap. Customers come cheap, too, but you've got to know where to find them. They don't just lie around like a piece of yellow pine. Customers are on the move. Customers are people.

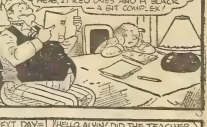

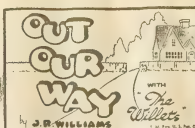

Smart business men... they have something to sell, they advertise for customers in the "Lindsay Daily Post". They know the folks that other folks follow read the "Lindsay Daily Post".

So — next time you want to reach MORE people who have money to spend for what you have to sell — why don't YOU advertise in "The Lindsay Daily Post", too?

Freed Boy Welcomed With a Mother's Kiss

Peter de Martis-Manguano, 12, who was left in Hungary because he was ill when his father died to join his wife and daughter in London in 1948, is reunited with his family for the first time in eight years at London Airport. He had been granted a passport by the Hungarian Government after his mother had sent a telegram to Soviet Party Chief Khrushchev asking his help in getting Peter out of Hungary. His father was formerly a Hungarian diplomat.

Hand Made Glass Products Reflect Growth of Medicine Hat

The wedding of cheap natural gas, clay and glass has brought about the evolution of Medicine Hat, Alberta, from a cow town to one of the chief centres of the Canadian ceramic industry. With great tanks of clay in the surrounding district, Medicine Hat's potters turn out vast quantities of clay brick, sewer pipe and flue liners for the building trades, crockery and table ware for the home. A new company (pictured here) specializes in delicate hand-made glass products. Here, owner John Furch begins to fashion piece from blob of molten glass suspended on four-foot long gathering tube.

National Film Board Photos by Gar Lunney

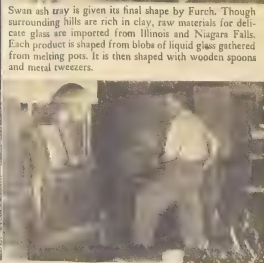

In shipping room, delicate, handcrafted glass swans are packaged for distribution and sale. This firm, a fairly recent addition to Medicine Hat's ceramic industry, produces about $100 worth of handcrafted glass products daily, uses over 300,000 cubic feet of natural gas per month in its operations.

Swan ash tray is given its final shape by Furch. Though surrounding hills are rich in clay, raw materials for delicate glass are imported from Illinois and Niagara Falls. Each product is shaped from blobs of liquid glass gathered from melting pots. It is then shaped with wooden spoons and metal tweezers.

Pluted edges are put on finished vase. The only factory in Alberta producing hand-made pieces in coloured glass, company was established in Medicine Hat in 1950 by Czechoslovakian craftsman Furch to take advantage of plentiful supply of natural gas. All equipment, including high-temperature furnaces, was built by Furch.

Removing molten glass from furnace on end of gathering rod. Furch begins initial step in production of glassware items. Raw materials—silica sand, potash, soda ash—are charged into furnaces and allowed to cook overnight at temperature of 2600°F. Colouring is achieved by use of various mineral oxides.
